Is A New Housing Bubble Forming?

The first quarter of 2020 has come and gone, and we're now looking forward to what is traditionally the strongest quarter of the annual housing cycle.

Unfortunately, the pandemic has brought fear and chaos to the housing market, just as it has to every other aspect of life in 2020. It's likely that this year is going to be a bit different.

VIDEO MARKET REPORT

I am experimenting with the use of video. My initial idea was to produce a quarterly housing market update on video and deliver that via this newsletter, my blog, and on Youtube.

If you click the image above, it will take you to our first-ever quarterly housing market update on video. The video addresses, in detail, the past, present, and speculative future of the housing market due to today's crazy conditions. Of course, I answer the oft-asked question, "Is Another Housing Bubble Forming?"

FEEDBACK

You, as a subscriber to this report, represent a segment of some of our longest-held relationships and we strongly value your opinion. We do not ask often, but would you please give us some feedback on what you think of the video format? Would you like to see more of this, or should we just stick to our weekly report?

Thank you for your time and loyal readership, see you next week! Stay safe. - Joe
